

Press Release:

February 2, 2010

Brighton, TN

Contact Person: ( Donn Janes djanes@donnjanesforcongress.org )

Donn Janes' Statement about Liberal Bias in U of M Text Book

“It appears that maybe Karl Marx has replaced God in our education system.

The book titled “A Concise Introduction to Logic” by Patrick J. Hurley is required reading for the “Elementary Logic” Class at the University of Memphis. The Subtitle for the book is “For Elementary Logic / PHILL 1611”.

It is common knowledge that progressive liberalism has found a subtle foothold in the curriculum of our high schools and college campuses. Nevertheless, I find it disturbing to see it first hand in such a blatant manner.

The book takes aim at conservative values even to the point of marginalizing a major news outlet. Page 34 alone tries to make logical arguments on more than one political issue. One of these ideological issues quietly embraces the Third Plank of Karl Marx’ “Communist Manifesto” as in regards to the federal government confiscating inheritances to preserve a democracy. Then the farce of global warming projections is portrayed as logical. Finally, the text implies that the conservative cable outlet FOX News is a propaganda Machine that is misleading its viewers. (To view the actual text from the text book go to <http://donnjanesforcongress.org/Events.html> and click on the “Link to Image Text”.)

The very same people who would propose that this is proper are the same ones who would condemn such logical ideas as espoused in the Biblical teachings found in the Ten Commandments. They would attest that there should be no place for the Ten Commandments in our school systems, yet make room for the Ten Planks of the Communist Manifesto.

The University of Memphis should refrain from utilizing textbooks with blatant liberal biases such as this one.

This book surfacing comes on the heels of the University of Memphis Administration allowing ACORN founder, Wade Rathke, to hold an on campus forum last November. A local TEA Party group alerted the community to Rathke’s forum. This allowed concerned parents such as myself to be able to address Rathke in person.

Maybe we concerned parents need to address the U of M Administration in person as well.

Donn”

Donn Janes is a candidate for the United States House of Representatives for Tennessee’s 8th Congressional District. A Navy veteran and businessman, Janes is an outspoken critic of how both Republicans and Democrats have continued to ignore any calls for fiscal responsibility, causing the United States to plunge deeper into debt.

---

---

About Donn Janes:

Follow my campaign on Facebook: <http://www.facebook.com/home.php?ref=home#/pages/Donn-Janes/83098916614?ref=search>

And Twitter: <http://twitter.com/donnjanes>

More information can be found at Donn Janes' campaign website <http://www.donnjanes.com>.